

The Halfway Point

Weekly Report Seventeen 01/08/18-01/14/18

It is now halfway through the year and each week has shown progress as they have become easier. Week seventeen has this same idea. It was one of the easier and more accomplishing weeks. However, with the original work due date coming up and research showcase coming up there is still a lot to do.

The first thing is preparing the portfolios for showcase. Instead of waiting until the last second to put together the physical portfolio, I added the weekly reports and assessments as they were completed. This helped save a lot of time during the process of creating it. The digital portfolio was the same way with adding assignments as they were completed. This allowed for the focus to be on the original work instead of the portfolios.

The original work is finally beginning to come together. The research information of the skills and approaches are all there; now it is just adding them to the website. The only problem with this was how to organize it in a way that is easy to follow, yet still includes all the necessary information. The only way to fix this was to put all the information for one of the pages onto it and test the different designs. This allowed to pick the most simplified and organized design page for the information. Then the next step was just repeating this on all the other pages.

With week seventeen finished, the next week is a stressful one, with research showcase and original work all due in the same week. The best thing to do to prepare is to do as much work as possible in advanced and to stay on top of what needs to be done and what has already been done.
